

July 21.

My dear Sir - I was glad to see by your letter which came yesterday that you were feeling better and that you had received the money all right. I am sorry that there was such a delay about it. Am glad that you are planning a little trip and hope you will feel better for it. I wish it were possible to do anything to make things better for you. but I feel that the expenses would not be quite so hard, if you could use a little common sense, and not always try to find the bad and hard things

I wish you could find something that would make you feel better satisfied if you want to stay longer than the fall, why try to place yourself somewhere, do that you can do it. No doubt if you made the effort, you could find something to do, which would supplement what we could send you. I have no desire that you should stay away longer, but I do not want you to return to be more unhappy than you have been. Miss Whitehouse and Miss Lightbourne both speak most pleasantly about you. Miss W

Now you write such a wonderfully interesting letter. I see a good deal of Miss Shepherd who has also a very expressive feeling for you. They are all very pleasant and I enjoy being with them.
There are no others here whom we know and no one who we have met in a years past - I have not heard anything from Eddie since I came here, he was dreadfully down when I left; and I feel very anxious about him. Betty wrote me a letter telling me of things generally, but that is all I have heard. Dr. Deenborn is giving me considerable trouble, it shows that he was not the gentleman we supposed I wish there was something really bright to tell you, but nothing seems to come my way that is of special interest I hope things will brighten up soon and that we shall all feel happier You would be surprised to see how Leslie has grown, she is very dear as tall as Adele, Doris is growing very fast too, Leslie will not go to London Cif. to school next winter Adele does not like it, I do not know what will be done. This is not much of a letter but I have really very little to say, Give much love Always affectionately

Mother
