ABOUT THE SEMINAR SERIES

The School Leadership Seminar Series, now in its 13th year, provides a forum for high school principals, aspiring administrators and college professors to meet and discuss issues of school leadership. The seminar series also encourages aspiring administrators to consider the high school principalship as a career goal, and explore the emerging challenges of the principalship. The three sessions focus on the principal's role in developing leadership capacities within the school constituencies of parents, students and teachers. Nassau County high school principals lead each session and provide current insights and applications related to each of the issues.

The seminar series consists of three sessions (4-6:30 p.m.), each including a light dinner served at arrival, held at 246 East Library Wing, Joan and Donald E. Axinn Library, South Campus, Hofstra University.

Individuals participating in all three seminars receive a Leadership Series Certificate from Hofstra University and the Nassau County High School Principals' Association.
