PANELISTS

Jim Low is an audit partner in KPMG's financial services practice and is leading up KPMG's Financial Services Regulatory Center of Excellence. He has extensive industry experience serving large diversified financial services organizations.

Priya Dayananda is KPMG's director of federal government affairs, whose group is responsible for representing the company's interests in all matters of public policy before the federal and state governments and for assisting non-U.S. practices in achieving their government affairs goals. Prior to joining KPMG, Ms. Dayananda served as a senior advisor to two members of the U.S. House of Representatives' Committee on Financial Services.

Edward Johnsen '76 is a partner in the financial services practice group of Winston & Strawn LLP, concentrating on regulatory matters relating to broker-dealers and other financial institutions. Mr. Johnsen has significant experience counseling clients on selling and trading securities and derivatives, risk arbitrage and proprietary trading, algorithmic and program trading, structured products, equity capital markets, and international and emerging market securities sales and trading. Mr. Johnsen graduated from Hofstra University with a Bachelor of Arts in history in 1976, and earned a Juris Doctor, magna cum laude, from New York Law School in 1986.

MODERATOR

Robert Guttmann is professor of economics and chair of the Economics Department at Hofstra University and, since 1993, is a visiting professor at Université Paris XIII in France. His research has focused on international monetary relations and public policy. Widely published in the United States, Europe, and Latin America, he is the author of How Credit-Money Shapes the Economy: The United States in a Global System (M.E. Sharpe, 1994) and Cybercash: The Coming Era of Electronic Money (Palgrave Macmillan, 2003). He is currently working on a book about the ongoing financial and economic crisis.
