The IDEAS* Institute of Hofstra University's School of Education and Allied Human Services Offers:

Accessible Physics: A Workshop of Physics Demos and Activities

Saturday, November 3, 2007

This is an activity-oriented workshop using easily accessible materials. Participants work with physical science "big ideas", and engage in activities that allow students to expand their understanding of the physical world around them. These activities use simple mathematics as thought tools. As its theme, this workshop explores the simplicity, elegance and beauty of physics. The activities and materials reinforce the ideas of Archimedes, Galileo, Newton, Bernoulli, and many others. This workshop will also be useful in urban education systems, and in areas that lack funds and facilities.

8:30 a.m.-5 p.m., Hagedorn Hall, South Campus

This workshop is appropriate for science teachers, grades 6-12.

See Registration form on reverse side for fee information.

About the Presenter:

L. E. Love taught physics for 47 years in the Great Neck school district. Since 1988, he has been an adjunct professor in the Hofstra University Department of Curriculum and Teaching, where he helps pre-service elementary school teachers learn about doing science with children. For close to 25 years, he has also been connected to the National Labor College, which is part of the George Meany Center for Labor Studies in Washington, D.C., where he developed a program to raise the level of scientific literacy of students who are working toward a liberal arts degree.
