The IDEAS* Institute of Hofstra University's School of Education and Allied Human Services Offers:

Geology, Mines and Mineral Deposits of Western and Central Connecticut – A Field Workshop

Saturday, April 26 and Sunday, April 27, 2008

The geology of western and central Connecticut is the focus of this field trip, designed to provide a better understanding of the geological development of the Nutmeg State. For teachers and geology enthusiasts, rock and mineral collecting will be available. Having spent many years mapping and collecting minerals in Connecticut, Dr. Merguerian is well versed on the geological and mining history of this picturesque region.

Leave campus at 8 a.m. on Saturday, April 26, 2008; return at approximately 6 p.m. on Sunday, April 27, 2008.

This workshop is appropriate for all teachers, grades K-12 and interested members of the public.

See Registration form on reverse side for fee information.

About the Presenter:

Dr. Charles Merguerian joined Hofstra's Geology Department in 1981. He is also president of Duke Geological Laboratory in Westbury, New York, and has broad consulting experience with the U.S. Geological Survey, the California and Connecticut State Geological Surveys, the New York City Department of Environmental Protection, and many geotechnical and engineering firms. Dr. Merguerian is recognized as the leading authority on the geologic structure and tectonics of the New York City area. He has devoted considerable effort to public education via television, radio and print media on the potential seismic hazards in the vicinity of New York City. Charles has led hundreds of field trips in the NYC area and throughout New England and has conducted field courses in California, Arizona, Hawaii and Wyoming.
