The IDEAS* Institute of Hofstra University's School of Education and Allied Human Services Offers:

Name That Rock III – Petrography of Rocks

Saturday, January 10, 2009

Join Dr. Merguerian for a one-day workshop devoted to the identification of rocks through the use of visual examination and testing together with stereoscopic and petrographic microscopy. During the workshop participants develop skills in the art of rock identification and classification using petrographic microscopy. The workshop fully explores the significant rocks of the Earth's crust and discusses various rock types of the major geological provinces of New York state. The session ends with developing insights into the use of rocks in the evaluation of geological history, with particular reference to the geology of New York City. This is a completely new workshop; attendance at Name That Rock I or II is not required.

8:30 a.m.-5 p.m., Gittleson Hall, South Campus

This workshop is appropriate for science teachers, grades 6-12 and interested members of the public.

See Registration form on reverse side for fee information.
