Have you used the Naxos Music Library lately?

Dear Subscriber,

Have you used the Naxos Music Library lately? If not, you should have a look. Naxos now includes over 40,000 CD discs which include over 580,000 tracks ... and it grows weekly! You will find there, in addition to this substantial amount of music, resources that will teach and enhance your appreciation for music. They include:

- brief biographies of composers
- discographies of artists
- glossaries
- curriculum guides for educators
- podcasts

Among recent podcasts are: an interview with pianist Jenny Lin, the Vienna Philharmonic playing Haydn, and Leonard Slatkin discussing Rachmaninov's Symphony No. 2.

You can find a link to the Naxos Music Library on the Library's Research Database page accessible from <http://www.hofstra.edu/library>.

Sincerely,

Howard E. Graves
