

HOFSTRA UNIVERSITY

UPCOMING EVENTS

- February 27, 2004 Teaching for Understanding in University Science Courses
Dr. Jacqueline Grennon-Brooks, Hofstra University
Target Audience: Hofstra natural and applied science faculty
Hagedorn Hall; Rooms 284, 285; 1-2:30 pm
- March 18, 2004 The Tortoise and the Lava Flow: Geology and Evolution in the Galapagos Islands Dr. Bret Bennington, Hofstra University.
Co-sponsored with the HCLAS Natural Sciences
Target Audience: Public Lecture
Business Development Center; Room 246; 7-9 pm
- March 20, 2004 Making Science Inclusive and Accessible
Dr. Gregory Stefanich, University of Northern Iowa
Target Audience: K-12 Teachers of Science
Hagedorn Hall; Rooms 284, 285; 8:30 – 5 pm
- April 17, 2004 i-Movie in the Science Classroom
Dr. Keith Sheppard, Columbia University
Target Audience: Chemistry and Physics High School Teachers and Middle School Physical Science Teachers
Hagedorn Hall; Rooms 05, 06 and 07; 8:30 -5 pm
- April 22, 2004 Computational Physics of the Heart: Normal and Abnormal Rhythms in Heart Disease Dr. Flavio Fenton, Hofstra University
Co-sponsored with the HCLAS Natural Sciences
Target Audience: Public Lecture
Monroe Lecture Hall: 7:00- 9:00 pm
- May 8, 2004 Science Activities that Really Work
Dr. Ken Appleton, Professor Emeritus, Central Queensland University,
Rockhampton, Australia
Target Audience: K-8 Science Teachers; 8:30 – 5 pm
- May 12, 2004 Treating Arthritis without Medication: Alternatives
Bronwyn Spira, Director of Physical Therapy
Madison Avenue Rehabilitation and Wellness
Target Audience: General Public, Senior Citizens 7-9 pm

May 20, 2004

Dead Stars Do Tell Tales: The Exciting Case of Supernova 1987A

Dr. Steven Lawrence, Hofstra University Public Lecture

Business Development Center; Room 246; 7-9 pm

June 5, 2004

Arts and Education Summit: Interdisciplinary Approaches to Integrating Science and Technology and Literacy with the Visual and Performing Arts. 9:00- 6 pm

US Department of Education Grant Award Recipients to present

July 6-31, 2004

MST Summer Institute

Kathy Chapman and Donna Migdol, Oceanside School District

Target Audience: Teachers(grades 3-7) and Teacher leaders