Sports Journalism and Broadcasting Institute

Continuing Education

Student: Kevin Kelly

I have attended the Hofstra Introduction to Sportscasting for Teens since 2008. I have come back every year because of the great experiences I have had and the wonderful people I have met. Not only do you learn the skills of Sportscasting, but you also learn about the profession it's self from men and women who have been very successful in the field.

Among other things, the week consists of preparing and conducting an interview, a radio update, and play by play/color commentary for football, basketball, and baseball. I have developed so many great relationships in my years taking this course, not only with other students but also with several of the professionals who teach the course. I would recommend taking this course, along with any of the other courses in this field offered by Hofstra.
