and Broadcasting Institute

Continuing Education

Student: John McHugh

The knowledge and experience I've gained from my three summers at the Hofstra Sports Broadcasting Workshop for Teens is truly irreplaceable. When I first started the workshop in the summer of 2010, I had thought that my dream of being a sportscaster was unattainable.

Through the years, the instruction I have received has made me realize that this dream is not only attainable, but possible. Being taught by a legend of the business such as Ed Ingles, and the incredibly knowledgeable staff of Hofstra Alumni (who now work in the broadcasting field) has been one of the most valuable experiences of my life.

They have taught me the skills that I will need to be successful in broadcasting. Although one week may not seem like a long time, they really pack a lot of activities into the week. The camp covers every aspect of Sportscasting, from play-by-play and color commentary on many different sports, to on-camera work, to radio updates. It really gives you a feel for what the job entails, and is a wonderful experience, which is both fun, and educational.
