

Job satisfaction. Priceless.

For those whose dream is to teach, there is no better place to turn that dream into reality than Hofstra University's School of Education and Allied Human Services.

Our extraordinary faculty – recognized nationally and internationally – know first-hand the challenges inside and outside the classroom. Classes are taught in Hagedorn Hall, where advanced technology enhances teaching effectiveness.

Moreover, our course selection is wide-ranging, encompassing elementary and secondary education and a variety of disciplines, including special education and literacy studies.

We must be on the right track. Hofstra is one of a handful of colleges and universities in New York state that has long been fully accredited by the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education.
