Hispanic/Latino Collection, 1951 - . (Bulk Dates: 1980-2008).

24.0 cubic ft.

Scope and content note:

The Hispanic/Latino Collection is comprised of materials donated by immigrants of Hispanic descent on Long Island, or organizations that serve this expanding population. The collection highlights folk musicians, percussionists and interpreters of popular Latin American music from different countries. The collection also includes videotapes of folk dance ballet and CDs and photographs of other dance folklore groups, from a variety of countries as well as biographical information, photographs and clippings representing Hispanic American arts in New York State in different disciplines.

Unique items within the collection include a harp donated by Colombian folk musician Pavelid Castañeda; a mixed media guitar sculpture from Pura Cruz, a Puerto Rican born artist; folk crafts and weavings from Latin America; and a Flamenco dress from Spain. Also included are music CDs interpreted by Hispanic American musician Theo Torres (Vientos del Sur), Los Macondos de Colombia, La Familia Castañeda, pianist Marianela Santurio, and percussionists Andrea Pryor de Manrique and Mike Santurio among many others.

An important element of the collection is the representation of Hispanic community leaders on Long Island as well as Hispanic American organizations serving minorities in New York State. There is extensive documentation which includes correspondence, announcements and photographs of community based organizations offering language classes to foreign born speakers, health services, housing, and other services to Hispanic Americans in New York State.

The collection offers a glimpse into the social life and customs of minorities in the U.S. The papers and documentation of the Brookhaven Citizens for a Peaceful Solutions reflect the civil rights struggles of illegal aliens in the U.S. after the bias attacks at Farmingville, Long Island, in 2000. Also present in the collection are materials (e.g., posters, press releases and photographs) related to the making of Farmingville, the award-winning documentary movie co-produced by lawyer, writer and filmmaker Carlos Sandoval, who is of Hispanic descent.
