Born in the Bronx, New York, Lisa Aron (1968- .) is the daughter of German-Jewish immigrants who escaped from Gdansk, Poland, after it fell under Nazi control in the late 1930s. The family then immigrated to Kenya.

Aron, who has lived in England and Kenya, is the author of an unpublished manuscript titled "Keyhole: The Politics of War Behind Closed Doors," which examines the political and diplomatic process that led to the outbreak of the Second World War. The manuscript also addresses the Holocaust and describes the horror of Auschwitz. It is dedicated to "the six million Jews, and other millions of victims who died in the Holocaust, including the people who fought for independence in Poland."

She has also authored three unpublished manuscripts about African-American history: "A Break with Tradition: Not Only for African Americans, but for All Mankind," "Leaving Them Behind: The Exclusion of Black Women in Nineteenth Century America" and "No Place for Them: Where Blacks Stood in the First World War."

The collection is comprised of facsimile copies of the final typescript versions of "Keyhole: The Politics of War Behind Closed Doors," "A Break with Tradition: Not Only for African Americans, but for All Mankind," "Leaving Them Behind: The Exclusion of Black Women in Nineteenth Century America" and "No Place for Them: Where Blacks Stood in the First World War."
