¹ It is recommended that students take the majority of courses in one group before enrolling in courses in the next group; however, and as illustrated in the examples, students may have a schedule that results in taking courses from multiple groups in one semester. Students construct their schedules with their advisors.

² Student enrolls in four Summer Sessions: two during the first year of the program (e.g., Summer Session I, Summer Session II) and then two during the second year of the program.

³ Student enrolls in one Summer Session during the second year of the program.
