75 YEARS: THE TRANSFORMATION OF PUBLIC SCHOOLS

In the last 75 years, education has undergone many changes – some incremental, others systemic. This symposium will focus broadly on issues of educational change, federal education policy (i.e., No Child Left Behind), and innovative trends in literacy and educational technology. More specifically, we will gain a historical overview of the field of educational psychology and its impact on educational technology, curriculum and instructional design. We will then explore the current and future impact of the No Child Left Behind Act and President Obama’s change initiative, the Race to the Top program. The symposium will conclude with a look at how literacy has evolved and how games in education will play a significant role in the future of school and learning transformation.
