CONFERENCE THEME

Awareness of identity issues marks our present moment. “Who am I?” “Who are we?” and “Who are you?” are increasingly difficult questions to answer, though they are questions of increasing salience to many. From the perspective of globalization, the world’s numerous communities are increasingly commingling. In our neighborhoods, difference is omnipresent. Diversity and modernity have shown themselves to be incommensurable. What does this mean for consciousness, civilization and their futures?

Though, in common discussion, identity is often recognized as an inherent part of human consciousness, Jean Gebser and others have problematized this notion. Gebser describes the emergence of identity as contingent upon the unfolding or development of consciousness in cultures. Emerging from the archaic consciousness’s “perfect identity of man and universe,” today’s modern and post-modern understandings of identity are hotly debated, involving matters such as individualism, race, ethnicity, sex, gender, class, agency and ascription. Is the present moment one of liminality? Or, has a “leap” of consciousness been made; have the various structures of consciousness become transparent matters of awareness? How have consciousness changes, if any, been manifested in behavior?

It is the goal of The International Jean Gebser Society to present this conference, with its theme of identity, in order to allow a forum in which these and other issues will be discussed in an air of scholarship and collegiality.

ABOUT THE INTERNATIONAL JEAN GEBSER SOCIETY

The International Jean Gebser Society is patterned after European societies, or circles, pursuing the work of a particular philosopher. Our society is devoted to the exegesis, translation, application and extension of Jean Gebser’s ideas.

Jean Gebser was born in Posen, Germany, in 1905. He studied and worked in Germany until the rise of the Nazi party in 1931. From Germany, he fled to Spain, where he wrote poetry (Poesis de la Tarde, 1936) and served in the Republican Ministry of Culture. When war overtook the country in 1936, he fled to Paris, where he associated with the circle of artists surrounding Picasso and Malraux. He fled Paris as the city fell in 1939 and went to Switzerland. He became a Swiss citizen in 1951, and in 1967 assumed the chair for the Study of Comparative Civilizations at the University of Salzburg.

It was in Switzerland that Gebser completed his monumental work on the comparative study of civilizations, Ursprung und Gegenwart (1949/53). The English translation was undertaken by Noel Bartsad with Algis Mickunas and was published as The Ever-Present Origin in 1985 by Ohio University Press. This massive effort of more than 500 pages is a phenomenology of civilization. From a vast collection of work covering many fields, historical and contemporary, Gebser described the modalities of consciousness of historical cultures, as well as the extent and openness of human consciousness in general. His work is penetrating and offers an understanding useful to scholars from many fields of study.

When reviewing Gebser’s manuscript for possible translation into English, the eminent Princeton historian Erich Kahler encouraged publication, calling the book “a very important, indeed in some respects pioneering, publication” that is “vastly, solidly, and subtly documented by a wealth of anthropological, mythological, linguistic, artistic, philosophical, and scientific material which is shown in its multifold and striking relationship.”
