Hofstra University continues its commitment to extending equal opportunity to all qualified individuals without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, marital status, age, national or ethnic origin, or physical or mental disability in the conduct and operation of its educational programs and activities, including admission and employment. This statement of nondiscrimination is in compliance with Title IX of the Educational Amendments of 1972, Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 and other federal, state and local laws. The Director of Environmental Safety in the Plant Department (516) 463-6622 is the individual designated by the University to coordinate its efforts to comply with Section 504. The Equal Rights and Opportunity Officer is the University’s official responsible for coordinating its adherence to Title IX and other equal opportunity regulations and laws. Questions or concerns regarding Title IX or other aspects of this policy (other than Section 504) should be directed to the Equal Rights and Opportunity Officer (516) 463-6775.

YOUTH EMPLOYMENT IN THE GLOBAL ECONOMY
An International Interdisciplinary Conference
Thursday and Friday
September 15 and 16, 2005

CALL for Papers

CENTER FOR THE STUDY OF LABOR AND DEMOCRACY
in cooperation with HOFSTRA CULTURAL CENTER

presents

YOUTH EMPLOYMENT IN THE GLOBAL ECONOMY
An International Interdisciplinary Conference
Thursday and Friday
September 15 and 16, 2005
CALL for Papers

CENTER FOR THE STUDY OF LABOR AND DEMOCRACY
in cooperation with
HOFSTRA CULTURAL CENTER
presents

YOUTH EMPLOYMENT IN THE GLOBAL ECONOMY
An International Interdisciplinary Conference

Thursday and Friday, September 15 and 16, 2005

Today's youth will shape tomorrow's economy; their job problems and prospects have far-reaching social implications. With baby boomers nearing retirement and some scholars predicting labor shortages in the near future, the rising educational levels and computer skills of young people could translate into unusually bright career outlooks. However, youth joblessness in the United States has recently risen to historic highs, and health insurance coverage, unionization and college affordability have all fallen. Growing concerns over strained public pension and health care systems are driving millions to delay retirement and leading some to warn that a “generational storm” may be on the horizon. What are the causes and consequences of such trends? How does the U.S. experience compare with the experiences of other industrialized nations? What are the most promising policies for improving young peoples' future employment prospects?

This conference invites original papers that explore the suggested topics listed below or other closely related topics:

• Youth unemployment, pay, working conditions and schedules.
• Student employment: impacts on school performance, career paths and family income.
• Schooling and training: access to affordable college or noncollege training.
• Health issues: youth workplace injury rates and health insurance coverage.
• Racial, ethnic, gender and class employment differentials and discrimination.
• Adult/youth job competition and “two-tier” pay/benefit structures.
• Young peoples’ involvement with unions and other worker advocacy organizations.
• Globalization’s impacts on the youth labor force: immigration, trade and outsourcing.
• Government laws, regulations and programs relevant to youth employment.
• Strategies to improve both the quantity and quality of young workers’ job opportunities.

Papers should focus on 16- to 24-year-olds in the United States or other advanced economies. They should be accessible to an interdisciplinary audience and should not have been previously published. Papers selected for presentation at the conference will also be considered for potential publication. Proposals for panels or round-tables in which you are willing to participate are also welcome.

Please first send a detailed abstract (in MS Word for Windows) of 3-4 pages, along with a brief, current curriculum vitae and full contact information, no later than March 15, 2005.

E-mail the abstract as an attachment to: hofculctr@hofstra.edu and to laborstudies@hofstra.edu.

For conference registration and other information, call (516) 463-5669, or visit the Web sites of the Center for the Study of Labor and Democracy (www.hofstra.edu/cld) and the Hofstra Cultural Center (www.hofstra.edu/culture).

Conference Director:
GREGORY DE FREITAS
Professor of Economics
Director, Center for the Study of Labor and Democracy
Hofstra University

Conference Coordinator:
LAUREN MENNELLA
Hofstra Cultural Center