29.0 c.f.

Poet and distinguished professor

Stephen Dunn was born on June 24, 1939, in Forest Hills, New York. He attended Hofstra University, where he played basketball and received a B.A. in history. Upon graduation in 1962, he played professional basketball for the Williamsport Billies in Pennsylvania. He did so until 1963, and then worked as an advertising copywriter in New York City. Dunn entered a creative-writing program at Syracuse University in 1968. After graduating from Syracuse in 1970, Stephen Dunn taught fiction at Southwest Minnesota State. In 1974, he began teaching at Stockton State College in Pomona, New Jersey, where he became Distinguished Professor of Creative Writing.

Stephen Dunn's works include, The Insistence of Beauty; Local Visitations; Different Hours (winner of the Pulitzer Prize, 2001); and Loosestrife (National Book Critics Circle finalist, 1996). In 1995, Dunn received an Academy Award in Literature from the American Academy of Arts and Letters. Among his other awards is the Levinson Award from Poetry magazine as well as fellowships from the National Endowment for the Arts and the Guggenheim Foundation. On the back book jacket of Between Angels, Philip Booth states, "To read Stephen Dunn of an evening is to see the complexities of one's own dailiness brought to light, lent focus, given voice." This quote is helpful in describing the work of Mr. Dunn. Stephen Dunn is a Pulitzer Prize winning poet who is sometimes referred to as the "basketball playing poet."

The Stephen Dunn Collection at Hofstra University consists of the personal and professional papers of Dunn, including various publications and appearances throughout his career. Also included is correspondence with other poets, friends, and colleagues, regarding his poetry. In addition to correspondence there is considerable amount of fan mail.
