Lessons of the Holocaust
A Blueprint for Genocide
A summer institute for 5th through 12th grade English, social studies, reading and special education teachers and pre-service teachers

August 13-17, 2007
9 a.m.-3 p.m.
Hagedorn Hall
South Campus
Course Outline

This institute examines the background, history, literature and artistic expression that emanated from the Holocaust. Participants read and write about the worst period of modern history and explore the legacy of that period in the post-Holocaust era. Sessions incorporate historical background, literature, writing and curriculum development. Holocaust survivors and liberators will give testimony of their experiences. Registrants are provided with a bibliography of relevant readings prior to the workshop. Curriculum projects will be developed during the week and presented during the final session.

Participants visit the Holocaust Memorial and Tolerance Center of Nassau County on Thursday, August 16, 2007, to explore the Center’s Holocaust educational resources. Students will leave with valuable lessons for their classrooms.
