The Department of Literacy Studies offers a Master of Science in Education in Literacy Studies with either an elementary or secondary emphasis; a Master of Science in Education in Literacy Studies and Early Childhood Special Education; a Master of Arts in Reading, Language, and Cognition; a Master of Arts in the Teaching of Writing; a Certificate of Advanced Study in Literacy Studies; a Professional Diploma in Advanced Literacy Studies; a Doctor of Education in Reading, Language, and Cognition; and a Doctor of Philosophy in Reading, Language, and Cognition.

PROGRAM STATEMENT

The faculty in Literacy Studies is committed to the exploration of issues of literacy and social justice. Our degree programs have been updated and are designed to maximize opportunities for students to work closely with a faculty that is committed to excellence in teaching. The faculty has received national and international recognition for their research and scholarship. They are committed to providing students in Literacy Studies with opportunities to participate in intellectual discussions that frame current understandings of school literacy practices and literacy practices that occur in family and community settings. The Literacy Studies Department provides support for families and communities as well as teachers and students in the New York Metropolitan area.

Our programs prepare effective literacy educators who will work at the crossroads of home, school, and community discourses to forge instruction that is meaningful and life-affirming to learners. Our students will engage in critical explorations of: 1. literacy practices in schools; 2. local and vernacular literacies of families and communities; 3. the relationships between literacy and social class, ethnicity, race, gender, poverty, language of origin and disability. Graduate students will join with faculty in a critical exploration of the ways in which students are taught to read and write in schools in urban, suburban, and rural communities. Attention is paid to the relationship between oral and written language from a variety of perspectives – social, cognitive, phonological, syntactic, semantic, and pragmatic. Faculty share the belief that all students bring rich language and literacy backgrounds to school that serve as a resource for learning. Graduate students will view theory and practice as inseparable and will possess the ability to engage in reflective practice.
MASTER OF SCIENCE IN EDUCATION: LITERACY STUDIES (BIRTH-GRADE 6 OR GRADES 5-12)

Associate Professor Zaleski, Graduate Program Director, (516) 463-5372, reajmz@hofstra.edu
Assistant Professor McGinnis, Graduate Program Director, (516) 463-5769, reatam@hofstra.edu

Programs leading to Initial/Professional Certification for teaching Literacy:

- Program I (Birth-Grade 6)
- Program II (Grades 5-12)

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

The master’s programs in Literacy Studies are designed for certified teachers to introduce students to contemporary theory and practice in literacy studies, so that they become effective scholar practitioners who understand and deliver high quality literacy instruction and offer proactive literacy leadership to schools and community agencies. Our programs reflect advances in literacy research and policies by the New York State Board of Regents regarding learning standards. These policies are designed to articulate the highest learning standards possible for all students and to balance attainment of these standards with consideration of issues of equity and access to education for economically disadvantaged and traditionally underrepresented groups at all levels of the education system.

Our programs prepare scholar practitioners to work with students Birth through Grade 6, and Grades 5 through 12. Students will work at broadening the definition of literacy practices beyond traditional school-based literacy in order to address the issues of equity, access, and opportunity that are involved in literacy acquisition in communities that are as economically, linguistically and ethnically diverse as those found in New York State.

These programs prepare students to meet the educational requirements for certification as literacy teachers in early childhood and childhood education, Birth through Grade 6, or middle childhood and adolescence, Grade 5 through Grade 12. The degree provides students with the opportunity to participate in classes that focus on the most current understandings of literacy and pedagogical practices. Students are prepared for the following teaching positions:

1. Classroom teachers with advanced preparation in literacy instruction.
2. Literacy specialists with advanced preparation in one-on-one and small group instruction in literacy processes.
3. Literacy specialists prepared to work collaboratively with classroom teachers in designing and implementing effective literacy instruction in inclusive environments.

ADMISSION REQUIREMENTS

1. B.A. or B.S. degree with a minimum GPA of 3.0.
2. Two letters of recommendation.
3. Possession of a New York State Initial or Provisional Teaching Certificate (see note b below).
4. Interview with a Program Director in Literacy Studies.

Notes: (a) Admission to graduate study requires a baccalaureate degree with a general core in the liberal arts and sciences in order to meet New York State certification requirements. (b) Admission to graduate study with Provisional Certification requires that a student take 3 s.h. of a New York State approved undergraduate or graduate course in Special Education as a prerequisite or corequisite to study. (c) Graduate students who enter a program of study on a nonmatriculated basis are limited to a maximum of 12 semester hours of course work. (d) A maximum of 9 semester hours of advanced standing may be accepted for relevant graduate course work taken elsewhere.
PROGRAM I: M.S. IN EDUCATION IN LITERACY STUDIES (BIRTH-GRAGE 6) (36 s.h.)
The sequence listed below is recommended. However, Phase I courses must be completed before entering Phase II. LYST 240, 241 are prerequisites for LYST 242. LYST 300 must be taken as part of the first 12 semester hours of study. LYST 301 must be taken as part of the final 12 semester hours of study. Electives may be taken at any time.

Phase I: 19 s.h.
LYST 200A Introduction to Literacy Studies, 3 s.h.
208 Language & Literacy in Urban Settings, 3 s.h. or 212 Family, Community, & School Literacies: Cultural Perspectives, 3 s.h.
213 Introduction to Bilingual & Biliteracy Instruction for Children & Adolescents, 3 s.h.
214 Language & Literacy in Early Childhood & Childhood, 3 s.h.
216 Literacy Learning at Home & in School: Social Contexts in Which Young Children Learn to Read & Write, 3 s.h. or 218 Reading & Writing Practices in Early Childhood & Childhood, 3 s.h.
220 Literature in the Lives of Young Children, 3 s.h.
300 Introduction to Portfolio Preparation, 1 s.h.

Phase II: 13 s.h.
LYST 240 Assessment & Evaluation of Reading & Writing, 3 s.h.
241 Miscue Analysis & Retrospective Miscue Analysis, 3 s.h.
242 Literacy Practicum: Assessing the Complexity of Student Learning (Birth through Grade 6), 3 s.h.
250 Literacy Teacher as Researcher, 3 s.h. or 251 Children & Adolescents as Literacy Ethnographers in Communities & Schools, 3 s.h.
301 Portfolio Advisement & Presentation, 1 s.h.

International Scholars’ Forum: 1 s.h.
An International Scholars’ Forum (LYST 351) is offered each semester for one semester hour. It is expected that students will take at least one International Scholars’ Forum for one semester hour. Students can take three additional International Scholars’ Forums to satisfy their elective requirements.

Electives: 3 s.h.
A student may select any graduate course in the School of Education and Allied Human Services, or in the University, as an elective with advisement. The following electives are recommended:
LYST 244 Advanced Retrospective Miscue Analysis, 3 s.h.
245 Revaluing Readers & Writers, 3 s.h.
247 Language, Discourse, & Cinema: Implications for Schooling, 3 s.h.
351 International Scholars’ Forum, 1 s.h.
FDED 220 Aesthetic Education, 3 s.h.
225 The Museum as Educator, 3 s.h.
MHAE 231 Teaching Elementary School Children About Health, 3 s.h.
SPED 201 The Exceptional Child, 3 s.h.

GRADUATION REQUIREMENTS
1. Completion of a minimum of 36 semester hours in prescribed courses with a minimum grade point average of 3.0.
2. Completion of a minimum of 70 hours of field experiences which includes a 50 hour practicum.
3. Successful presentation of a learning portfolio to faculty and peers.
Teacher Certification Requirements

Upon successful completion of a teacher education program, students will be eligible to apply for the University’s recommendation for New York State Certification. Students are required to have passing scores on each of the New York State Teacher Certification Examinations (NYSTCE): the Liberal Arts and Sciences Test (LAST), the Assessment of Teaching Skills-Written (ATS-W), and the appropriate Content Specialty Tests (CSTs). Students not receiving passing scores on all New York State required examinations will not be eligible for certification. Additionally all students who are recommended by Hofstra’s Advisement and Certification Office must either attend seminars in Child Abuse and Maltreatment, Substance Abuse, Fire and Arson and Safe Schools Against Violence (Project SAVE) or provide documentation from an agency providing State registered seminars. Please contact the Advisement and Certification Office for information regarding the fingerprinting requirement and any other specific requirements regarding certification.

Additional Certification in Grades 5-12 (12 s.h.)

Students who specialize in Early Childhood and Childhood (Birth through Grade 6) may obtain specialization in Middle Childhood and Adolescence (Grade 5 through 12) by also taking the following courses:

- LYST 215A Language and Literacy in Middle Childhood & Adolescence, 3 s.h.
- LYST 217A Reading and Writing With Adolescents, 3 s.h. or
- LYST 219 Reading and Writing Workshop for Teachers, 3 s.h.
- LYST 220 Literature in the Lives of Young Children, 3 s.h.
- LYST 243 Literacy Practicum: Assessing the Complexity of Student Learning (Grades 5-12), 3 s.h.

Program II: M.S. in Education in Literacy Studies (Grades 5-12) (36 s.h.)

Master of Science in Education: Literacy Studies (Birth-Grade 6) and Early Childhood Special Education (Birth-grade 2)

Associate Professor Zaleski, Graduate Program Director, (516) 463-5372, reajmz@hofstra.edu
Associate Professor Schwartz, Graduate Program Director, (516) 463-5778, cpriecs@hofstra.edu
Assistant Professor McGinnis, Graduate Program Director, (516) 463-5769, reatam@hofstra.edu

Program Overview

The dual master's program in Literacy Studies and Early Childhood Special Education is designed for certified teachers who seek to meet New York State educational requirements for certification as literacy teachers (Birth through Grade 6) and teachers of special education, Early Childhood (Birth-2). Graduates of this program are certified for the following teaching positions:

2. Literacy specialists with advanced preparation in one-on-one and small group instruction in literacy proceses, birth to grade 6.

1-866-GRADHOF (472-3463)
3. Literacy specialists prepared to work collaboratively with classroom teachers in designing and implementing effective literacy instruction in inclusive environments, birth to grade 6.
4. Teachers of special education with advanced preparation in literacy instruction in early childhood.
5. Teachers of special education at the early childhood developmental level.

The following principles, which are consistent with New York State Education Department principles of articulation and collaboration, underlie this dual master's program:

1. A commitment in all of our courses to include instruction on current New York State Standards for Literacy and the Language Arts, and the means to implement these standards in classrooms and schools.
2. A commitment to address the new certification requirements articulated by New York State, including the preparation of separate course requirements and fieldwork requirements for students in Literacy Studies (Birth through Grade 6), as well as provision for the Early Childhood developmental level in Special Education. The certification requirements for Special Education are met within course work and fieldwork in Early Childhood and conform to the standards and guidelines of the Council for Exceptional Children.
3. Revision of all our programs to include the latest pedagogical understandings and practices in literacy instruction and special education.
4. A commitment to social justice and equity, and to broadening the definition of literacy practices beyond traditional school-based literacy in order to address issues of equity, access, and opportunity that are involved in literacy acquisition in communities that are as economically, linguistically, and ethnically diverse as those found in New York State.

ADMISSION REQUIREMENTS

1. B.A. or B.S. degree, with minimum GPA of 3.0.
2. Two letters of recommendation.
3. Possession of a New York State Initial or Provisional Teaching Certificate in Early Childhood, Childhood, Elementary Education, or Secondary Education (see note (b) and (e) below).
4. Interview with faculty members in Literacy Studies and Special Education.

Notes: (a) Admission to graduate study requires a baccalaureate degree with a general core in the liberal arts and sciences in order to meet New York State certification requirements. (b) Students who enter the dual program must have taken the New York State LAST examination prior to admission. (c) Graduate students who enter a program of study on a nonmatriculated basis are limited to a maximum of 12 semester hours of course work. (d) A maximum of 9 semester hours of advanced standing may be accepted for relevant graduate course work taken elsewhere. (e) Students who have initial/provisional certification in an area of study other than those listed above in #3 should speak to the department adviser for requirements for admissions.

PROGRAM OF STUDY: LITERACY STUDIES (BIRTH-GRADE 6) AND SPECIAL EDUCATION (BIRTH-GRADE 2) (47-50 s.h.)

Students take 47-50 s.h. for the dual certification in Literacy Studies (Birth to Grade 6) and Special Education (Birth-Grade 2): 26 s.h. in Literacy Studies and 21-24 s.h. in Special Education. Phase I courses must be completed before entering Phase II. LYST 240 and 241 are prerequisites for LYST 242. LYST 300 must be taken as part of the first 12 s.h. of study. It is recommended that students take courses in Literacy Studies and Special Education concurrently as listed in the table below.

CERTIFICATE OF ADVANCED STUDIES (C.A.S.): LITERACY STUDIES WITH NEW YORK STATE TEACHER OF LITERACY CERTIFICATION (BIRTH-GRADE 6 OR GRADES 5-12)
Assistant Professor McGinnis, Graduate Program Director, (516) 463-5769, reatam@hofstra.edu

PROGRAM OVERVIEW
The Certificate of Advanced Studies in Literacy Studies is designed for certified teachers with a master's degree who want certification in literacy. The programs in Literacy Studies introduce students to contemporary theory and practice in literacy studies, so that they become effective scholar practitioners who understand and deliver high quality literacy instruction and offer proactive literacy leadership to schools and community agencies. Our programs reflect advances in literacy research and policies by the New York State Board of Regents regarding learning standards. These policies are designed to articulate the highest learning standards possible for all students and balance attainment of these standards with consideration of issues of equity and access to education for economically disadvantaged and traditionally underrepresented groups at all levels of the education system.

Our programs prepare scholar practitioners to work with students Birth through Grade 6, and Grade 5 through Grade 12. Students will work at broadening the definition of literacy practices beyond traditional school-based literacy in order to address the issues of equity, access, and opportunity that are involved in literacy acquisition in communities that are economically, linguistically and ethnically diverse as those found in New York State.

These programs leading to Professional Certification for teaching of Literacy, prepare students to meet the educational requirements for certification as literacy specialists in early childhood and childhood education, Birth through Grade 6, or middle childhood and adolescence, grade 5 through grade 12. The Certificate of Advanced Studies provides students with the opportunity to participate in classes that focus on the most current understandings of literacy and pedagogical practices. Students are prepared for the following teaching positions:
1. Classroom teachers with advanced preparation in literacy instruction.
2. Literacy specialists with advanced preparation in one-on-one and small group instruction in literacy processes.
3. Literacy specialists prepared to work collaboratively with classroom teachers in designing and implementing effective literacy instruction in inclusive environments.

ADMISSION REQUIREMENTS
1. M.A. or M.S. degree, with a minimum GPA of 3.0.
2. Two letters of recommendation.
3. Possession of a New York State Teaching Certificate (See note (b) below).
4. Interview with faculty member in Literacy Studies.

Notes: (a) Admission to graduate study requires a baccalaureate degree with a general core in the liberal arts and sciences in order to meet New York State certification requirements. (b) Admission to graduate study with Provisional Certification requires that a student take a 3 s.h. undergraduate or graduate course in special education as a prerequisite or corequisite to study. (c) Graduate students who enter a program of study on a nonmatriculated basis are limited to a maximum of 12 semester hours of course work. (d) A maximum of 6 semester hours of advanced standing may be accepted for relevant graduate course work taken elsewhere.
PROGRAM I: C.A.S. IN LITERACY STUDIES WITH NEW YORK STATE TEACHER OF LITERACY CERTIFICATION (BIRTH-GRADE 6) (27 s.h.)

PROFESSIONAL DIPLOMA: ADVANCED LITERACY STUDIES

Professor Taylor, Graduate Program Director, (516) 463-5370, readzt@hofstra.edu

Program I: Professional Diploma in Advanced Literacy Studies

Program II: Professional Diploma in Advanced Literacy Studies with New York State Teacher of Literacy Certification (Birth-Grade 6 or Grades 5-12)

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

The Professional Diploma in Advanced Literacy Studies is designed for teachers with a master's degree in education and an interest in advanced studies in literacy. The P.D. in Advanced Literacy Studies provides a critical examination of current issues in literacy pedagogy for experienced teachers interested in the professional development of literacy teachers. The Professional Diploma involves advanced course work in contemporary theory and practice in literacy studies, language and language learning, reading and writing processes, advocacy for language learners, literacy in families and communities, and cultural and historical perspectives of literacy and schooling. Students will examine a range of theoretical approaches to teacher inquiry, staff development, and teacher leadership in literacy education. Two years of supervised field work provide first hand experiences working with readers and writers who struggle, and examining critical issues in literacy learning and teaching with colleagues and parents.
PROGRAM I: PROFESSIONAL DIPLOMA IN ADVANCED LITERACY STUDIES
This program provides advanced studies in literacy pedagogy and professional development for students who have a master's degree in Reading or Literacy Studies and current certification in reading or literacy. We are looking for applicants who are committed, life-long teacher/learners with a potential for language arts/literacy staff development.

This program prepares students for the following positions:
- Classroom teachers with advanced preparation in literacy learning, teaching, and teacher research.
- Literacy specialists with advanced preparation in one-on-one and small group instruction in literacy processes.
- Literacy specialists prepared to work collaboratively with classroom teachers in designing and implementing effective literacy instruction in inclusive environments.
- Lead teachers or mentor teachers, working at the building level to provide consultations, demonstrations and resources for language arts/literacy teachers.
- Language arts/literacy specialists at the building or district level.
- Language arts/literacy consultants and writers.

ADMISSION REQUIREMENTS
1. Master's degree in education with a minimum GPA of 3.0.
2. Current certification in Reading or Literacy.
3. A letter of application describing teaching experiences and interest in professional development in literacy.
4. Minimum of 2 years of full-time teaching experience.
5. Two recommendations including at least one school administrator.
6. Interview with a member of the Literacy Studies faculty. Portfolios or other examples of applicant's work are welcome at interviews.

Note: Students are accepted into the program throughout the school year, however the P.D. core courses start during the Fall semester and continue for six semesters (Fall, Spring, and Summer). Graduate students who enter a program of study on a nonmatriculated basis are limited to a maximum of 12 semester hours of course work. A maximum of 6 semester hours of advanced standing may be accepted for relevant graduate course work taken elsewhere.

PROGRAM OF STUDY (30 s.h.)
The Professional Diploma in Advanced Literacy Studies includes a series of six courses, with related field experiences, providing advanced course work in literacy pedagogy and professional development in literacy studies. The core sequence is typically taken during six consecutive semesters (Fall, Spring, Summer) in a cohort group. All P.D. students are expected to participate in the Summer Community Literacy Project (involving a 3 to 4 week session with K-12 students) during the first year.

Graduation Requirements

1. Completion of a minimum of 30 semester hours in prescribed courses, including at least 24 hours in residence, with a minimum grade point average of 3.0.
2. Completion of the supervised field experience involving a minimum of 70 hours of field work.
3. Completion of a professional paper on literacy teaching.

Program II: Professional Diploma in Advanced Literacy Studies with New York State Teacher of Literacy Certification (Birth-Grade 6 or Grades 5-12)

This program provides advanced studies in literacy pedagogy and professional development for students who have completed a Master’s Degree in Education and have initial or provisional certification. We are looking for applicants who are committed, life-long teacher/learners with a potential for language arts/literacy staff development. Students in this program work towards certification in Literacy Studies as they complete the Professional Diploma. Students in Program II are prepared to meet the educational requirements for certification as literacy specialists in either early childhood and childhood education, Birth through Grade 6, or middle childhood and adolescence, Grade 5 through 12.

This program prepares students for the following positions:

- Classroom teachers with advanced preparation in literacy learning, teaching, and teacher research.
- Literacy specialists with advanced preparation in one-on-one and small group instruction in literacy processes.
- Literacy specialists prepared to work collaboratively with classroom teachers in designing and implementing effective literacy instruction in inclusive environments.
- Lead teachers or mentor teachers, working at the building level to provide consultations, demonstrations and resources for language arts/literacy teachers.
- Language arts/literacy specialists at the building or district level.
- Language arts/literacy consultants and writers.
ADMISSION REQUIREMENTS

1. Master's degree in education with a minimum GPA of 3.0.
2. Possession of a New York State Teaching Certificate (see note (b) below).
3. A letter of application describing teaching experiences and interest in professional development in literacy.
4. Minimum of 2 years of full-time teaching experience.
5. Two recommendations including at least one school administrator.
6. Interview with a member of the Literacy Studies faculty. Portfolios or other examples of the applicant's work are welcome at interviews.

Notes: Students are accepted into the program throughout the school year, however the P.D. core courses start during the Fall semester and continue for six semesters (Fall, Spring, and Summer). (a) Admission to graduate study requires a baccalaureate degree with a general core in the liberal arts and sciences in order to meet New York State certification requirements. (b) Students admitted to graduate study with a Provisional Certification must take a 3 s.h. undergraduate or graduate course in Special Education as a prerequisite or corequisite to study. (c) Graduate students who enter a program of study on a nonmatriculated basis are limited to a maximum of 12 semester hours of course work. (d) A maximum of 6 semester hours of advanced standing may be accepted for relevant graduate course work taken elsewhere.

The Professional Diploma in Advanced Literacy Studies includes a series of six courses, with related field courses, providing advanced course work in literacy pedagogy and professional development in literacy studies. The core sequence is typically taken during six consecutive semesters (Fall, Spring, Summer) in a cohort group. All P.D. students are expected to participate in the Summer Community Literacy Project (involving a 3 to 4 week session with K-12 students) during the first year.

Students in Program II also take five additional courses in Literacy Studies. These courses are taken as a prerequisite or corequisite to core courses, as indicated on the plan of study. With advisement, students may transfer up to one course (3 s.h.) in language arts/literacy teaching and one course (3 s.h.) in children's or adolescent literature taken previously at the graduate level.

1. Completion of a minimum of 42 semester hours in prescribed courses, including at least 36 hours in residence, with a minimum grade point average of 3.0.
2. Completion of a 50 hour practicum as a literacy specialist.
3. Completion of the Professional Diploma supervised field experience involving a minimum of 70 hours of field work.
4. Completion of a professional paper on literacy teaching.
TEACHER CERTIFICATION REQUIREMENTS
Upon successful completion of a teacher education program, students will be eligible to apply for the University's recommendation for New York State Certification. Students are required to have passing scores on each of the New York State Teacher Certification Examinations (NYSTCE): the Liberal Arts and Sciences Test (LAST), the Assessment of Teaching Skills-Written (ATS-W), and the appropriate Content Specialty Tests (CST's). Students not receiving passing scores on all New York State required examinations will not be eligible for certification. Additionally all students who are recommended by Hofstra's Advisement and Certification Office must either attend seminars in Child Abuse and Maltreatment, Substance Abuse, Fire and Arson and Safe Schools Against Violence (Project SAVE) or provide documentation from an agency providing State registered seminars. Please contact the Advisement and Certification Office for information regarding the fingerprinting requirement and any other specific requirements regarding certification.

RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN PROFESSIONAL DIPLOMA IN ADVANCED LITERACY STUDIES AND THE LITERACY STUDIES DOCTORAL PROGRAM
The Professional Diploma in Advanced Literacy Studies is recommended for teachers with a primary interest in exploring issues of pedagogy and staff development in literacy. It is also recommended for advanced graduate students interested in literacy certification. Students with a primary interest in teacher research, research in language and literacy, and/or a position in higher education are encouraged to apply to the Literacy Studies doctoral program. Completion of the Professional Diploma in Advanced Literacy Studies does not guarantee admissions into the doctoral program.

Students awarded a diploma must meet all of the requirements and complete all the standard procedures for admissions into the Literacy Studies doctoral program. Students who receive a Professional Diploma in Advanced Literacy Studies at Hofstra and are accepted into the doctoral program may bring up to 45 semester hours into the doctoral program subject to approval by faculty in the Literacy Studies Department.
(LYST) COURSES

LYST 200  Fall, Spring  3 s.h.
Writing With Adolescents and Young Adults
Focuses on leading edge theory viewing writing as a fluid process heavily influenced by the personal, social, cultural, and political contexts in which writers, and their readers, function. Explores how writing, as well as reading and related language processes, serve as foundations for lifelong learning/inquiry, with emphasis on writing about reading. Topics include assessment/evaluation of, and response to, student writing and instruction. (Formerly WRIT 200, Theories and Research in the Teaching of Writing.)

LYST 200A  Fall, Spring, Summer  3 s.h.
Introduction to Literacy Studies
This course seeks to unravel some of the meanings we give to “literacy,” through an investigation of key assumptions, including socio-cultural, historical, and political learning theories. Reading selections and reflective writing focus on personal literacies, the interrelationships of language, culture, and schooling, and major thinkers. (Formerly LYST 210, READ 220, Reading, Writing and Cognition.)

LYST 201  Summer  3 or 6 s.h.
Long Island Writing Project Invitational Summer Institute
The Long Island Writing Project Summer Institute is an intensive summer program designed to assist practicing K-12 teachers from all subject areas in deepening their theoretical understandings of writing processes and writing as a cross-disciplinary tool of inquiry, within the context of exploring their own writing and by developing suitable instructional approaches/activities for the students they teach. Conducted as an experiential workshop and professional seminar. Students taking the course for 6 s.h. of credit are required to complete additional course work.
Prerequisite: permission of instructor.

LYST 202  Fall, Spring, Summer  1 s.h.
Literacy for Special Subjects Teachers
This course addresses current issues in literacy studies of concern to teachers of art, music, health or physical education. The course addresses: reading and writing as constructive language processes; language and literacy learning; and the relationship between literacy and other sign systems (such as art, music, or movement). Pre-service and in-service special subjects teachers will explore how they can collaborate with classroom teachers to provide opportunities for students to construct meaning in a variety of expressive systems.

LYST 204  Fall, Spring  3 s.h.
Language, Culture, and Identity: Issues for Young Writers
Course examines the ways in which writing, as well as reading and other language processes, can become tools with which young children negotiate socially imposed linguistic borders based on class, race, ethnicity, previous educational attainment and/or expectations, peer regard, gender, country of origin, etc. Course explores the roles of writing, dialect, bilingualism, and related language processes in identity formation, values clarification, and critical consciousness.

LYST 205  Fall, Spring  3 s.h.
Teaching Creative Writing
Focuses on developing classroom structures and teaching strategies for the acquisition and development of literacy techniques and traditions through writing poetry and fiction. Special emphasis on the relationship between creative writing and critical analysis of literary works. Course requires participation in an experiential poetry and fiction writing and reading workshop in which students read from and write in these genres.

LYST 206  Fall, Spring  3 s.h.
Teaching Memoir, Autobiography, and Personal Narrative
Focuses on developing classroom structures and teaching strategies for teaching multidisciplinary, source supported non-fiction writing. Topics include: inquiry-learning; writing as a well-informed non-expert; and developing research strategies and techniques. Course requires participation in an experiential personal narrative writing and reading workshop in which students read from and write in these genres.

LYST 207  Fall  3 s.h.
Teaching Non-Fiction Writing
Focuses on developing classroom structures and teaching strategies for teaching multidisciplinary, source supported non-fiction writing. Topics include: inquiry-learning; writing as a well-informed non-expert; and developing research strategies and techniques. Course requires participation in an experiential writing workshop.

LYST 208  Spring  3 s.h.
Language and Literacy in Urban Settings
This course focuses on how people use language and learn language in the communities where we live and teach. Sociolinguistic perspectives on language variation among diverse populations are examined to expose common myths and to understand the language experiences of students from multilingual and multidialectal urban settings. Course topics include language systems (phonological, orthographic, syntactic, semantic, pragmatic), language variation, language learning/language acquisition, and discourse in and outside of classrooms. Attention is given to the construction of pedagogies that promote access to language and literacy in schools. A ten hour field experience is required. (Formerly LYST 211.)
LYST 209 Fall, Spring 3 s.h.
Language, Culture and Identity: Literacy Issues for Adolescents and Young Adults
Course examines the ways in which writing, as well as reading and other language processes, can become tools with which adolescents and young adults negotiate socially imposed linguistic borders based on class, race, ethnicity, previous educational attainment and/or expectation, peer regard, gender, country of origin, etc. Course explores the roles of writing, reading, and related language processes, in identity formation, values clarification, and critical consciousness. Topics include discourse theory, oral and written language variation, as well as close examination of the language strengths and needs of learners who are biliterate, bilingual, and/or bidialectal. A ten hour field experience is required. (Formerly LYST 217. Language, Culture, and Identity, Issues for Adolescent and Young Adult Writers.)

LYST 212 Fall, Spring, Summer 3 s.h.
Family, Community, and School Literacies: Cultural Perspectives
Participants in this course consider the research on family literacy and explore pedagogical practices that are sensitive to the local and vernacular literacies of families and their children. Emphasis is placed on the importance of culturally responsive literacy instruction and on the importance of encouraging families to participate in the education of their children who are attending public schools. Field experiences are intended to provide participants with theoretically grounded pedagogical practices, which lead to more people working together, celebrating their own literacies while at the same time using the many forms of literacy available to them to support the literacy learning of all children in school. A ten-hour field experience is required. (Formerly READ 222. Literacy in Families and Communities; Ethnicity, Family and Schooling: Implication for Literacy Instruction.)

LYST 213 Fall, Spring, Summer 3 s.h.
Introduction to Bilingual and Biliteracy Instruction for Children and Adolescents
This course explores the cultural, linguistic, political and pedagogical aspects involved in the process of developing school literacies in bi/multicultural classrooms. Literacy development is discussed in the perspective of supporting learners to use biliteracy as a tool to understand, to extend, and to act upon their worlds. Topics include the relationship between oral and written language processes in bilingual/biliterate students, and the interaction between languages during literacy and language learning. The course examines the literate pedagogical needs and assessment procedures of bilingual and biliterate learners within special and general education contexts. All theoretical explorations are nested in the learning processes of individuals with bilingual literacy experiences, including students who are considered to have special education needs. A ten hour field experience is required. (Formerly READ 223. Advanced Reading Instruction for Teachers of Bilingual Children and Adolescents.)

LYST 214 Fall, Spring, Summer 3 s.h.
Language and Literacy in Early Childhood and Childhood
This course investigates issues in language and literacy for children from birth to grade six. Readings and discussions of the language processes (listening, speaking, reading, and writing) are grounded in theoretical perspectives in the areas of psycho-sociolinguistics, social/cultural literacies, the transactional nature of literature, and critical literacy. Language development is studied in readings and field experiences with an emphasis on the role of language and culture in learning to read and write. Students are expected to develop their own theories of how children learn to read and write in schools and communities. A ten hour field experience is required. (Formerly READ 245. Teaching Reading in the Content Areas; Language and Literacy in Early and Middle Childhood.)

LYST 215A Fall, Spring, Summer 3 s.h.
Language and Literacy in Middle Childhood and Adolescence
This course investigates issues in language and literacy, focusing on grades 5-12. Readings and discussion of the language processes (listening, speaking, reading, and writing) are grounded in the theoretical perspectives in the areas of psycho-sociolinguistics, social/cultural literacies, the transactional nature of literature, and critical literacy. Language and literacy development of middle school and high school students is studied through readings and field experiences. There is an emphasis on the role of cultural and linguistic diversity in literacy learning and teaching. Students are expected to develop their own theories of literacy learning in schools and communities. A ten hour field experience is required.

LYST 216 Fall, Spring 3 s.h.
Literacy Learning at Home and in School: Social Contexts of Young Children Learning to Read and Write
This course explores how the many literacies that occur in family settings can inform the ways in which we create literacy environments for children in school. Focuses on the social processes and ways of knowing through which parents and children create personal and shared literacy configurations. Explores the complexities of young children’s uses of print and the functions and forms of their early symbolic representations. The interrelationships between children’s early writing development and the emergence of phonemic awareness are examined. Particular attention is given to the literacy learning at home and in school of children of special needs. A ten hour field experience is required. (Formerly Literacy Learning at Home and in School.)
LYST 217A Fall, Spring, Summer 3 s.h.
Reading and Writing With Adolescents
Focuses on current theory about the nature of the reading and writing processes, and ways in which reading, writing, and literacy theory can be developed into effective reading, writing, and/or English education instruction for adolescents and children in middle childhood. Includes critical perspectives on canonical and academic literacies, language variation, standardized testing, censorship, assessment and “remediation,” student reading-writing choice, avid reading/writing, disenfranchised readers/writers, and personal literacies. A ten hour field experience is required. (Formerly LYST 215. Reading With Adolescents and Young Adults.)

LYST 218 Fall, Spring, Summer 3 s.h.
Reading and Writing Practices in Early Childhood and Childhood
This course investigates reading and writing practices in the early and childhood years. The focus is on developing teaching strategies and learning experiences for engaging children in reading and writing a wide variety of meaningful texts, including media and technology across the curriculum. Students explore the connections among oral language, reading, writing, and children’s literature in a theoretically grounded literacy framework. Teaching strategies and learning practices focus on recognizing learners’ linguistic understandings and reading and writing strategies, and developing opportunities for all readers to interrogate their world, explore their questions, and use language to act upon their learning. A ten hour field experience is required. (Formerly READ 224. Teaching of Reading: Reading and Writing Practices in Early and Middle Childhood.)

LYST 221 Fall, Spring 3 s.h.
Literature for Adolescents and Young Adults
This course engages readers in meaningful response through reading, talking, and writing about literature for adolescents and young adults. Understanding of identity, social justice, and equity are investigated through discussions of what counts as literature, whose stories are told and who gets to tell them. Objectives for this course include critically and aesthetically reading from a wide variety of texts, while also participating in intensive reading with others in literature groups. This course is recommended for students interested in working with readers from sixth grade to young adult. (Formerly READ 236.)

LYST 223 January 3 s.h.
Introduction to Critical Literacy and Critical Media Studies
Exploration of literacy instruction in relation to larger social purposes of teaching, and in relations to the forces of acculturation in society. Information received from print and electronic media sources is critiqued and ways in which the words we hear and read, and the images we view, shape our subjectivities and our understanding of the world around us are explored. Participants engage the possibilities of teaching in ways that open up a more conscious and liberating approaches to literacy instruction in schools and society.

LYST 240 Fall, Spring, Summer 3 s.h.
Assessment and Evaluation of Reading and Writing
This course provides participants with an overview of ethnographic literacy assessment theory and practice. Topics for study include ethnography, authentic classroom assessment, transactional view of language, and a critical examination of standardized tests and testing practices. Participants consider teaching, learning, and schooling from the perspective of the learner as they develop and put into practice a student advocacy model of instructional assessment which values ethnic and linguistic diversity.
Prerequisite: completion of Phase I Literacy Studies courses. (Formerly READ 248.)

LYST 241 Fall, Spring 3 s.h.
Miscue Analysis and Retrospective Miscue Analysis
This course takes a sociopsycholinguistic perspective on the reading process and recognizes that the meanings that readers construct are both personal and social. By engaging in several close-grained observations of oral reading events, participants use miscue analysis techniques to document readers’ uses of cognitive strategies and language cue systems. Additionally, participants select and teach strategy lessons and conduct retrospective miscue analysis sessions with one student. A 20 hour practicum at the Saltzman Reading/Writing Learning Inst. is required.
Prerequisites: completion of Phase I courses. (Formerly READ 241. Case Studies in Reading (K-12).)
LYST 242 Fall, Spring, Summer 3 s.h.
Literacy Practicum: Assessing the Complexity of Student Learning (Birth through Grade 6)
This practicum provides participants with the opportunity to establish a critical site of inquiry for the study of ethnographic approaches to literacy assessment. Participants develop biographic literacy profiles by using close-grained observations of literacy processes (ethnographic assessment, miscue analysis, retrospective miscue analysis and strategy lessons) to determine how individuals use literacy to solve problems in community and school settings. Participants develop and put into practice a student advocacy model of instructional assessment that values ethnic and linguistic diversity. Emphasis on grades K-6. A 30 hour practicum at the Saltzman Reading/Writing Learning Inst. is required.
Prerequisites: completion of Phase I Literacy Studies courses and LYST 240, 241. (Formerly READ 242. Reading Clinic Internship.)

LYST 243 Fall, Spring, Summer 3 s.h.
Literacy Practicum: Assessing the Complexity of Student Learning (Grades 5-12)
This practicum provides a critical site of inquiry for the study of ethnographic approaches to literacy assessment. Participants create biographic literacy profiles by using close-grained observations, miscue analysis, writing document analysis, retrospective miscue analysis and strategy lessons to solve problems in community and school settings. Participants develop and put into practice a student advocacy model of instructional assessment that values ethnic and linguistic diversity. Emphasis on middle school, high school, and young adult students. A 30 hour practicum at the Saltzman Reading/Writing Learning Inst. is required.
Prerequisites: completion of Phase I courses, LYST 240 and 241.

LYST 244 Summer 3 s.h.
Advanced Retrospective Miscue Analysis
Retrospective Miscue Analysis is a powerful tool, which enables teachers and researchers to engage in a close-grained study of a reader's processing of written text. In this procedure, the teacher/researcher employs miscue analysis techniques to engage readers to bring the use of reading strategies at a conscious level. Teachers and students work together as co-explorers of the reading process. In this course participants are involved in planning and executing several RMA sessions and associated reading strategy lessons with a specific instructional or research focus in mind.
Prerequisites: Phase I courses and LYST 241.

LYST 245 January 3 s.h.
Revaluing Readers and Writers
In this course, the construct of learning disability is critically examined in terms of its social contexts and the cultural space in which it operates. This course embraces social, linguistic and transactional views of reading and writing, language, learning, teaching, and how curriculum and “normality” shape our responses to those perceived as “struggling.” This course addresses the following strands: revaluing students who struggle with reading and writing, strategies for supporting and scaffolding meaning-making processes; and the nature of reading and language.
Prerequisites: completion of Phase I courses. (Formerly READ 251. Teaching Reading to the Learning Disabled and the Indifferent Learner; Revaluing Struggling Readers.)

LYST 247 January 3 s.h.
Language, Discourse, and Cinema: Implications for Schooling
Explores the techniques of cinematography—the “language of film”—in order to examine how film conveys meaning, as well as how this expressive system has become one of the most rapidly evolving forms of symbolic communication. This sort of knowledge base is a prerequisite to any deeper exploration of specific aspects of cinema, such as the second focus of the course, which is to consider the language within film by examining a selection of English-language motion pictures for linguistic insights about the relationship between language, culture, and identity. Course culminates in an exploration of the pedagogical implications of these linguistic/cinematic insights on language and literacy instruction in American schools.

LYST 248 Fall, Spring, Summer 3 s.h.
Writing Practicum: Assessing and Supporting Children as Writers
This practicum provides participants with a critical site of inquiry for the study of ethnographic approaches to literacy assessment and teaching. Participants develop biographic profiles of young writers by using close-grained observations of literacy processes (ethnographic observations, document analysis, developmental portfolios, etc.) to determine how children use writing to solve problems in community and school settings. Participants develop and put into practice a student advocacy model of evaluation and instruction that values ethnic and linguistic diversity. Emphasis on K-6. A 30 hour practicum at the Saltzman Reading/Writing Learning Inst. is required.
Prerequisites: completion of Phase I courses in M.A. in Teaching of Writing, LYST 240 and 262.
LYST 249  Fall, Spring, Summer  3 s.h.
Writing Practicum: Assessing and Supporting Adolescent Writers (Grades 5-12)
This practicum provides a critical site of inquiry for the study of ethnographic approaches to literacy assessment. Participants create biographic literacy profiles of writers using close-grained observations of literacy processes (ethnographic observations, writing document analysis, developmental portfolios, interview and conferences, etc.) to determine how individuals use writing to solve problems in community and school settings. Participants develop and put into practice a student advocacy model of instructional assessment that values ethnic and linguistic diversity. Emphasis on middle school, high school, and young adult students. A 30 hour practicum at the Saltzman Reading/Writing Learning Inst. is required.
Prerequisites: completion of Phase I courses in M.A. in Teaching of Writing, LYST 240 and 262.

LYST 250  Fall, Spring  3 s.h.
Literacy Teacher as Researcher
This course explores classroom-based teacher inquiry in literacy education as a method of professional development and responsive teaching. Students develop a baseline knowledge of the philosophical underpinnings and methodological techniques for conducting and critically responding to teacher research. A ten hour field experience is required.
Prerequisite: completion of Phase I courses.

LYST 251  Fall, Spring  3 s.h.
Children and Adolescents as Ethnographers in Communities and Schools
This course focuses on the ways in which teachers can engage children and adolescents in ethnographic and sociolinguistic research to explore the literacies of their communities and schools. Focuses on how ethnographic and sociolinguistic research is linked to social action and can become an essential part of reading and writing instruction in schools. A ten hour field experience is required.
Prerequisite: completion of Phase I courses.

LYST 260  Periodically  3 s.h.
Cultural and Historical Perspectives of Writing
This course explores the cultural and historical roots of written language as well as the social practices which help shape the use of written language in society. The course investigates how written conventionalities emerge from the shared uses of written language, as well as the interplay between individual and social development of writing in sociocultural settings. Following the theoretical premise that writing is a complex symbolic and representational system, students in this seminar engage in learning experiences where they are asked to reflect about the nature of written language and its role in the organization of social life.

LYST 261  Summer  3 s.h.
Writing Pictures Painting Stories as Mindful Social Practice
This course focuses on functional texts and aesthetic scripts, illustration as visual story, photography as visual poetry, writing as an art form, lettering as design, the physicality of print, how tools and materials influence composition, and the production of texts as mindful social practice. Students will participate in: (1) studio activities; (2) seminars; and (3) a field trip to the Metropolitan Museum of Art. In addition to the MET, a ten hour field experience is required. There is a material fee. Open to matriculated students in the MS in the Teaching Writing Program or to MSED students who have completed Phase I of the MSED in Literacy Studies, or by permission of the instructor.

LYST 262  Periodically  3 s.h.
Understanding What a Writer Knows
This course looks at writing assessment, including understanding writing as a means of identity development and performance of self for young writers, and examining the ways in which writing assessment can be linked to instruction. The course also explores alternative assessment techniques, such as narrative and discourse analysis, as well as self-assessment. This course includes a 20-hour practicum experience. All assessment procedures are conducted as part of an internship. The practicum experiences are conducted at the Reading/Writing Institute located in the Reading/Writing Clinic on Campus.

LYST 263  Periodically  3 s.h.
Teachers as Writers
This experiential course provides teachers with opportunities to pursue their own writing strengths and interests. In a workshop setting, students write original fiction and non-fiction in order that they might find the rewards a writing life holds for them, as well as overcome reservations they have about their own writing. They engage in teacher and peer conferencing, revision, publishing, and reflection about their history as writers both within and beyond their formal education.

LYST 264  Periodically  3 s.h.
Teachers as Poets
In this course, students experience reading and writing poetry in a classroom workshop environment. In order to develop understandings of poetry’s possibilities in the lives of the children we work with students work at seeing themselves as readers and writers of poetry through writing their own original poetry and developing their own abilities to identify poetry around them. The course provides opportunities for teacher and peer conferencing, revision, publishing, and reflection upon their experiences with poetry. An elective in Phase I of the M.A. in the Teaching of Writing.
LYST 270 Fall 3 s.h.
Revaluing Language, Language Learning, and Language Learners
The primary purpose of this broad-based course is to engage Professional Diploma students in an intensive study of literacy as a language process and then to apply this information to constructing optimal classroom environments that support literacy growth. The course focuses on nurturing insights about how language works and how to document the development of learners. A primary mode for exploration is to study language in use—that is, how language works as we observe our students and ourselves using language. LYST 237A is taken concurrently with this course. Prerequisite: admission to the Professional Diploma in Literacy Studies or permission of instructor.

LYST 271 Spring 3 s.h.
Family, Community, School and Workplace Literacy
In this seminar, participants explore how our understandings of the plurality of literacies in family, community, and workplace settings can inform the ways in which we create literacy environments: 1) for children in school; 2) for adults in “basic” education programs; 3) for students in college; and 4) for adults in the workplace. Participants are encouraged to establish critical sites of inquiry in which they can document the ways in which people use literacy in a variety of everyday settings. The underlying premise of the course is that 1) all literacies are situated; 2) all uses of written language can be seen as located in particular times and places; 3) all literate activity is indicative of broader social practices; and that 4) it is through literacy, in all its complexity, that difficult problems can become amenable to human action. LYST 273B is taken concurrently with this course. Prerequisite: LYST 270 or permission of instructor.

LYST 272 Summer 3 s.h.
Community Literacy Project
In this course, Professional Diploma students teach collaboratively in the Summer Community Literacy Project. The project engages K-12 students in an investigation of literacy practices in their community. Course work includes collaborative planning for the project, child study discussions of K-12 grade students’ literacy practices and literacy development, experience based discussions of community literacy, and related readings on community literacy programs. The Summer Community Literacy Project and the course culminate with publication of writings. LYST 273C is taken concurrently with this course. Prerequisite: LYST 271 or permission of instructor.

LYST 273A Fall 1 s.h.
Supervised Field Work in Literacy: Teacher to Student I
In this course, Professional Diploma students assume the role of educational advocate for a K-12 student having difficulties with reading and writing. Assessment and instruction build upon the linguistic understandings, strengths and abilities of the K-12 student. Students meet in small groups with a faculty member, functioning as a “child/learner study” team. This course includes a minimum of 10 hours of field work and 6 hours of supervision. Corequisite: LYST 270. Pass/Fail grade only.

LYST 273B Spring 1 s.h.
Supervised Field Work in Literacy: Teacher to Student II
In this course, Professional Diploma students continue to work as mentor and educational advocate for a K-12 student. The course focuses on assessment informed instruction. Students meet in small groups with a faculty member, functioning as a “child study” team. This course includes a minimum of 15 hours of field work and 6 hours of supervision. Corequisite: LYST 271. Pass/Fail grade only.

LYST 273C Summer 1 s.h.
Supervised Field Work in Literacy: Community Literacy Project
In this course, Professional Diploma students work as a teacher in the Summer Community Literacy Project. The course involves a minimum of 25 hours of field work. Corequisite: LYST 272. Pass/Fail grade only.

LYST 275 Fall 3 s.h.
Literacy Teaching and Professional Development
This course explores structures that support literacy teachers in developing theoretically grounded, learner-centered literacy assessment and teaching practices through inquiry groups and other forms of professional development. For teachers in leadership roles in literacy education as teacher/consultants, mentor teachers, resource teachers, language arts supervisors, or curriculum specialists. LYST 278A is taken concurrently with this course. Prerequisite: LYST 272 or permission of instructor.

LYST 276 Spring 3 s.h.
Cultural Roots of Literacy Development
This course explores the creation of writing systems by human beings and the social processes involved in written language acquisition in diverse cultural settings. It relates the history of writing to children’s literacy development. The cultural and historical roots of written language as well as the social practices which help shape the use of written language in society are discussed extensively. Following the theoretical premise that writing is a complex symbolic and representational system, students in this seminar engage in learning experiences where they are asked to reflect about the nature of written language and its role in the organization of social life. LYST 278B is taken concurrently with this course. Prerequisite: LYST 275 or permission of instructor.
LYST 277    Summer  3 s.h.

Literacy Teacher as Professional Writer
This course provides a workshop for advanced graduate students to write data-based research for scholarly publication. Topics include levels of discourse, representation, voice/audience, purpose, literature reviews, documentation, and placement. Emphasis on the use of technology in writing, formatting and layout, as well as non-textual representations. The course is intended for students in the Professional Diploma in Advanced Literacy Studies program.

Prerequisite: LYST 276 or permission of instructor.

LYST 278A    Fall  1 s.h.

Supervised Field Work in Literacy: Teacher Project Design
In this course, Professional Diploma students develop a professional development project for a school, school district, or community. Projects may include mentoring a beginning teacher, establishing a teacher study group, providing demonstrations and/or consultations, developing a staff development or parent workshop series, etc. The course involves a minimum of 10 hours of work onsite and 6 hours of supervision. Pass/Fail grade only

Corequisite: LYST 275.

LYST 278B    Spring  1 s.h.

Supervised Field Work in Literacy: Teacher Project Implementation
In this course, Professional Diploma students implement a professional development project for a school, school district, or community. Projects may include mentoring a beginning teacher, establishing a teacher study group, providing demonstrations and/or consultations, developing a staff development or parent workshop series, etc. The course involves a minimum of 15 hours of work onsite and 6 hours of supervision. Pass/Fail grade only

Corequisite: LYST 276.

LYST 280-289, A-Z    Fall, January, Spring, Summer  1-3 s.h. each

Advanced Workshop in Literacy Studies
Designed to meet the needs of classroom teachers, literacy specialists, and literacy educators in positions of leadership. Focuses on: 1) literacy practices in school, families and communities; and the 2) relationships between literacy and issues such as social class, ethnicity, race, gender, poverty, language of origin and disability. As individual subjects are selected, each is assigned a letter (A-Z) which is added to the course number. These workshops may be taken a number of times as long as there is a different letter designation each time a workshop is taken. (Formerly READ 280 through 289, A-Z.)

LYST 300    Fall, Spring, Summer  1 s.h.

Introduction to Portfolio Preparation
This course examines the nature and purposes of portfolio evaluation and procedures for selection and compilation. Professional uses of portfolio assessment in educational settings are explored. This course is required in all Master of Science in Education in Literacy Studies programs, and in all Master of Science in Literacy Studies and Special Education programs. Must be taken during the first 12 semester hours of course work. Pass/Fail grade only.

LYST 301    Fall, Spring  1 s.h.

Portfolio Advisement and Presentation
This course provides individual and group advisement to graduating students in presentation of their portfolios to Literacy Studies faculty for evaluation. This course is required in all Master of Science in Education in Literacy Studies programs, and in all Master of Science in Literacy Studies and Special Education programs. Must be taken during the final 12 semester hours of course work. Pass/Fail grade only.

LYST 301A    Spring, Summer  3 s.h.

Master's Essay
For Master of Arts in the Teaching of Writing candidates only. Under advisement and with permission of instructor. Pass/Fail grade only. (Formerly WRIT 301. Master's Essay.)

LYST 351    Fall, Spring  1 s.h.

International Scholars' Forum
The International Scholars' Forum in Literacy Studies brings to Hofstra University scholars and scholar practitioners whose work has made a difference to the lives of teachers and the students that they teach. The International Scholars' Forum provides opportunities for students to enter into a conversation with the leading educators of our time, with the researchers and teachers who have shaped our thinking, who are activists and advocates, and who struggle for social justice. Course can be repeated for credit. Pass/Fail grade only.

LYST 352    Fall  1 s.h.

Literature and the Imagination Conference
This annual conference is an opportunity for students, scholars, practitioners, and all who are interested in young people and their literature to assemble for the following purposes: 1) to nurture our own needs for story and imagination; 2) to support the work of teachers as they find time and space to share literature in classrooms with their children; and 3) to create a culture of talk about books that might advocate for meaningful, thoughtful, and enjoyable experiences with children's and young adults' literature. Invited guests and speakers represent outstanding people from the field of children's and young adults' literature; authors, illustrators, poets, publishers, librarians, academics, and scholar-practitioners. Pass/Fail grade only.
Reading (READ)

Master of Arts: Reading, Language, and Cognition

Professional Diploma in Reading

Professor Taylor, Graduate Program Director, (516) 463-5370, readzt@hofstra.edu

Students are no longer being accepted into these two programs. Students interested in a Master's degree or Professional Diploma should see the programs in Literacy Studies.

Doctoral Programs in Reading, Language and Cognition

Professor Taylor, Graduate Program Director, (516) 463-5370, readzt@hofstra.edu

Doctor of Education (Ed.D.) in Reading, Language, and Cognition: designed for teachers, reading and language arts specialists, and other professional personnel in the public schools who will be concerned primarily with practice and college-level teaching. It includes the basic courses in the Master's and Professional Diploma Programs in Literacy. An early childhood emphasis in the Ed.D. program is provided for applicants who work in or wish to prepare in early childhood stages.

Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.) in Reading, Language, and Cognition: designed for specialists concerned primarily with research, experimentation and higher education, and includes the basic courses in the Master's and Professional Diploma Programs in Literacy.

A bilingual/bicultural emphasis in the Ed.D. or Ph.D. program is provided for bilingual applicants (Spanish-English) who work in or wish to prepare to work in bilingual settings.

General Requirements

Matriculation

1. Basic University requirements for doctoral degrees.
2. Letters of recommendation from two supervisors, administrators or college professors who are in a position to rate the applicant.
3. Teaching experience: 3 years for Ed.D. prior to entering and 5 years before completion; for Ph.D. candidates, teaching experience adequate for providing the necessary experiential background to develop meaningful research proposals.
4. Master's degree or equivalent.
5. Academic proficiency in undergraduate and graduate study.
6. A satisfactory score on the Miller Analogies Test or the GRE.
7. Statement of goals (on application supplement).
8. Satisfactory score on the department's Doctoral Admissions Examination in Reading and Writing. For foreign applicants, a satisfactory score on the TOEFL.
9. Bilingual applicants must take a language proficiency examination in English and Spanish.

Degree Candidacy

Students will be admitted provisionally until they fulfill the following requirements necessary for full acceptance as degree candidates. These requirements must be met within three years of matriculation:

1. Master's comprehensive examination for students whose master's degree was not taken in the Hofstra University Reading Department. The results of this examination will be used to plan the student's advanced course of studies and to make up any deficiencies.
2. For Ed.D. candidates, satisfactory completion of RES 259, 259L, 260 and 260L or equivalents. For Ph.D. candidates, satisfactory completion of RES 259, 259L, 260, 260L, 363, 363L or equivalents. In some cases, RES 363 and 363L (4 s.h.) are also required for the Ed.D. candidates, depending on the nature of their dissertations. These courses may also be used toward course work requirements.
3. For Ph.D. candidates, a reading knowledge of a modern language, preferably French, German or Spanish.
4. Acceptance by the Graduate Committee.

Graduation Requirements

1. Completion of a minimum of 90 graduate credits for both the Ed.D. and the Ph.D.
2. A comprehensive examination. The doctoral comprehensive examination must be taken during or after READ 363.
3. Satisfactory completion of the dissertation and the oral examination must be scheduled through the major adviser. The Ed.D. dissertation will concentrate on practical application to a school situation and may be descriptive in nature. The Ph.D. dissertation will concentrate on basic research having more universal application. It will be either statistical in nature or designed to develop theoretical models based on an insightful analysis in depth of basic research already completed or in combination with case studies. Candidates must complete all requirements within 5 years of acceptance as a degree candidate.

Residency

Students who matriculate for the doctoral programs in reading must spend one year in full-time residence or fulfill the options approved by the Graduate Committee.

Advanced Standing

Students who have taken graduate courses at other institutions which are similar to courses required in the Hofstra University Reading programs may apply for advanced standing.

Transfer credit up to 45 semester hours may be granted for similar courses taken in programs leading to a master's degree or a professional diploma.

Ed.D.: Reading, Language, and Cognition

Professor Taylor, Graduate Program Director, (516) 463-5370, readzt@hofstra.edu

The Doctor of Education in Reading, Language, and Cognition program is planned to prepare the following:

- Specialists who coordinate reading services in schools on a district-wide basis.
- Consultants with major responsibility for curriculum improvement on a district-wide level.
- Instructors who intend to teach reading and language arts courses at the college level.
- For bilingual candidates, the initiation and administration of school-wide or district-wide bilingual reading and language arts programs.
- For bilingual candidates, the improvement of bilingual reading and language arts instruction through assistance to bilingual classroom teachers.
- Instructors who are teaching an integrated language arts program at the early childhood level.

PH.D.: READING, LANGUAGE, AND COGNITION

Professor Taylor, Graduate Program Director, (516) 463-5370, readzt@hofstra.edu

The Doctor of Philosophy in Reading, Language, and Cognition program is planned to prepare the following:
- Reading specialists who plan to engage in research, evaluation and experimentation in the field of reading.
- Reading specialists taking leadership positions in clinics.
- Reading specialists who plan to teach and direct research in colleges and universities.
- Personnel for bilingual/bicultural programs in schools, for supervisory positions, research, and college testing.

WRITING (WRIT)

MASTER OF ARTS: THE TEACHING OF WRITING (BIRTH-GRADE 6 OR GRADES 5-12)

Programs leading to Initial/Professional Certification for Teaching of Writing/Literacy (Birth-Grade 6 or Grade 5-12)

These programs prepare students to meet the educational requirements for certification as literacy teachers in Early Childhood and Childhood Education, Birth through Grade 6, or Middle Childhood and Adolescence, Grade 5 through Grade 12. These degrees provide students with additional preparation as teachers of writing and the opportunity to participate in classes that focus on the most current understandings of literacy, writing, and pedagogical practices. Students are prepared for the following teaching positions:

- Classroom teachers with advanced preparation in literacy and writing instruction.
- Literacy/Writing teachers with advanced preparation in one-on-one and small group instruction in literacy processes.
- Literacy/Writing teachers prepared to work collaboratively with classroom teachers in designing and implementing effective literacy instruction in inclusive environments.

ADMISSION REQUIREMENTS

1. B.A. or B.S. degree, with minimum GPA of 3.0;
2. two letters of recommendation;
3. possession of a New York State Initial or Provisional Teaching Certificate (see note (b) below);
4. interview with faculty members in Literacy Studies.

Note: (a) Admission to graduate study requires a baccalaureate degree with a general core in the liberal arts and sciences in order to meet New York State certification requirements. (b) Admission to graduate study with Provisional Certification requires that a student take a 3 s.h. undergraduate course in Special Education as a prerequisite or corequisite to study. (c) Graduate students who enter a program of study on a nonmatriculated basis are limited to a maximum of 12 semester hours of course work. (d) A maximum of 6 semester hours of advanced standing may be accepted for relevant graduate course work taken elsewhere.

GRADUATION REQUIREMENTS

1. Completion of a minimum of 36 semester hours in prescribed courses with a minimum grade point average of 3.0.
2. Completion of a minimum of 50 hours of field experiences in addition to 50 hours of practica.
3. Successful presentation of a learning portfolio to faculty and peers.
International Scholars’ Forum: 1 s.h.
International Scholars’ Forum (LYST 351) is offered each semester and features prominently known teacher/researchers in literacy studies from across the United States and around the world.

Teacher Certification Requirements
Upon successful completion of a teacher education program, students will be eligible to apply for the University’s recommendation for New York State Certification. Students are required to have passing scores on each of the New York State Teacher Certification Examinations (NYSTCE): the Liberal Arts and Sciences Test (LAST), the Assessment of Teaching Skills-Written (ATS-W), and the appropriate Content Specialty Tests (CST’s). Students not receiving passing scores on all New York State required examinations will not be eligible for certification. Additionally all students who are recommended by Hofstra’s Advisement and Certification Office must either attend seminars in Child Abuse and Maltreatment, Substance Abuse, Fire and Arson and Safe Schools Against Violence (Project SAVE) or provide documentation from an agency providing State registered seminars. Please contact the Advisement and Certification Office for information regarding the fingerprinting requirement and any other specific requirements regarding certification.
