<sup>1</sup> It is recommended that students take the majority of courses in one group before enrolling in courses in the next group; however, and as illustrated in the examples, students may have a schedule that results in taking courses from multiple groups in one semester. Students construct their schedules with their advisors.

<sup>2</sup> Students enroll in two summer sessions (summer classes will generally last 14 weeks): one during the first year of the program and one during the second year of the program.

<sup>3</sup> Students enroll in one summer class (summer classes will generally last 14 weeks) during the second year of the program.

<sup>4</sup> Students completing the long-term care track will need to take a core course in their second summer instead of an elective so that they are able to complete HADM 233 in the fall semester.
